Citi postpones retail securities offering

Tokyo - Citigroup Inc. announced today that it will postpone its 3.22% due 2011 Securities offering, which had been set to close today, September 30, 2008. Citigroup's agreement-in-principle to acquire certain banking and other assets of Wachovia Corporation was announced September 29, 2008, after the Subscription Period for the Securities had ended. Securities subscribers were therefore unable to re-evaluate their investment decision by considering this new information. Citigroup intends to revisit the Samurai market when appropriate.
